The Food for Poultry in Winter.

Much time and money have been spent in what seems an almost vain endeavor to make hens produce eggs in cold weather. It requires but little experience with poultry to learn the fact that, under orlinary circumstances, hens cannot produce as many eggs in winter as in summer. Summer is the natural time for the laying of eggs, and in order to increase winter production there must be reproduced for the fowls as nearly as possible the conditions that exist in summer. Mrs. John J. Laysell of Brandon, Vt., has evidently succeeded in doing this with her flock. She says: "I have been using Page's Perfected Poultry Food for the last three winters, and I find it the best poultry food on the market. I have tried

Raw Meat as a Food for Hens

Those who are familiar with Poultry know with what caserness they eat raw meat of any kind. This habit indicates that raw meat is something their nature demands. There is perhaps, no material better adapted to the needs of fowls—especially in winter—than Green Cut Bone and Meat ground together. It is not only invigorating but it contains in a form easily assimilated the very elements required for the making of eggs. It will make the store who feel run down, and Meat ground together. EXTERMINATING THE SPARROWS.

Regarded as a Pest and Enemies of Song Birds-Poultry Raisers Object to Supplying Them with Food.

The group of men and women in Brattleboro who are keenly interested in the native song birds and doing all in their power to make the village more attractive for them are rejoicing in the unusual scarcity of English sparrows this winter. It is well known to all students of bird life that the English sparrows drive off the native birds and that no village can have any amount of bird song if the sparrows are present. Without the Britishers of any other village. out them Brattleboro or any other village could be made so safe and attractive to the native birds that they would nest Kidney Pills. Great Brattlebera cures or ove it.

E. H. Gleason. El Green Street. Brattlebera, Vel. Says: "For more than a year I had backache and I believe that excessive driving was the cause of the birds that they would nest commonly about the houses and in the shade trees along the streets, and they would make Joyous music throughout the spring. No village could be better fitted to attract birds than Brattlebera, but for many years the efforts of the bird enthusiasts in this direction have week. not been very successful owing to the large numbers of the English sparrow

> A quiet warfare has been going on against the English sparrows for some years but the results have not been very apparent until this winter. During the warm months the sparrows are scattered all over the town, but when cold weather all over the town, but when cold weather comes they flock into the village. This year the bird enthinsiasts were surprised and pleased to note the small size of the flocks in the street. The searcity may have been due to the warfare of the past few years or to some cause not known by the bird students. The searcity of the pests led the birdmen to consider means for a practical extermination. A little conferentian from those ion. A little cooperation from those attracted in attracting native song birds into the village would make it possible practically to exterminate the sparrows this winter. A plan to bring about this highly desirable end has been evolved and any one who is interested in taking part in the campaign may get the details by consulting any of the well-known birdmen in town.

Aside from the question of attracting he native birds into the village there is decidedly practical issue in the matter o all who keep poultry. In winter when ood is scarce the sparrows flock about the hen-houses, particularly those where the feeding is done outside the house. They est an enomous quantity of grain considering their size. It has been esis a sparrows will cat as much each lay as it hens. A number of men who raise poultry in a small way have complained bitterly at being forced to support a big flock of sparrows about their hen-houses. A still more important aspect of the question to the poultry men is the fact brought out by the try food on the market. I have tried several different kinds, but I got no eggs until I began to use this food."

If you want to know more about this food and the best ways of using it. rant the poultry raisers in joining heart-ity with the birdmen in a war of ex-termination. Many of them already have done so, and if others join the work can be done well in the next few weeks.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine." Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics-the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

He was to be met at antislavery and woman suffrage meetings, and was regarded with respect. Every-where he espoused the advanced ideas. And when he was at last ready, he ob-tained medical education for the purpose of practicing his unusual healing gifts with a basis of scientific knowledge which would remove him from the mere "healers". How he was received by the medical profession we do not remember, but it appears that in Boston, where his medical practice was he had a certain amount of success. A Baston paper says: "Dr. Davis's methods of diagnosis were peculiar to himself. He did not feel the pulse, or look at the tongue, or take the temperature, or use the stethoscope on his patients, or ask them any questions. He merely put the tips of his flagers on the paim of his patient's hand and thus "mansel" his patient's condition. Then "sensed" his physical condition. Then he prescribed such remedies as his knowledge of therapeutics directed. He was immensely popular with his patients. Every one loved him. He was always ready with wise counsel or pleasant jest. He had a keen sense of humor. With his medical and hygienic advice he mingled sound common sense and a great deal of gental, kindly philosophy, so that his patients always went and the patients always went and the patients always went and the patients. tients always went away in a hopeful frame of mind. He was extremely benevolent, and devoted much of his time to patients who could afford to pay little or nothing. Thousands of men and wo-men in and around Boston will feel that
